THE IDEAL POULTRY HOUSE.

The ideal poultry house is difficult to describe. There seems to be nothing about the poultry business in regard to which there is a wider difference of opinion than on this point. It seems to be the general opinion that the type of house is not very important so long as it is dry, well ventilated, and the fowls have plenty of the proper kind of food. Food is the essential thing, and of course certain foods are much better than others. A. M. Brown of North Rochester, Mass., gives his opinion on als particular point in the following leter. He says: "I have fed nearly all he poultry foods on the market, but not with such returns as Page's Perfected Poultry Food gives. My hens have an average of 80 percent to their credit. Last winter it was 50 percent. I know this food is the best on the mar-
